

Another spectacular day on the waters surrounding MDI. A record of 21 entries came to the starting area off Gilpatrick Cove for the third annual regatta to honor the legendary Tom Morris and to help provide sailing school scholarships for the youth programs at MDICSC and the NEHSS. The Race Committee tried a new twist to the pursuit race by allowing sailors to choose which way to go around the Cranberries. We had an almost even split with many of the earlier starters heading east while the larger boats headed right out the Western Way. Those who hesitated or, were a bit indecisive, got stuck in the middle of the Great Harbor and left far behind.

White Wings started last and finished first as they worked hard into the Manset shore on their way out the Western Way. They finally reeled in Poppaea and Va Pensiero in the waning sprint to the finish line. Many boats finished one right after another and a good number enjoyed the great gathering at Morris Yachts afterwards as well.

Franny and Sue Charles were on Shearwater while Bardy Roberts and Nat Paine helped out with Course Descriptions from a NEH Fleet Skiff. Glenn Squires kept our local press happy and informed from the MDICSC whaler.
